PANEL 1

Large panel, not full width. From left: Griz, looking grim, still holding a knife to Autumn's throat (Autumn looks genuinely concerned). In the middle, the Faerie Queen still has a hand crossbow pointed at her head, seething with fury. Daisy looks confident and determined as she confronts Griz. Little Attitude looks shaken and worried.

GRIZ

You do ANYTHING and I'm slicing her throat.

DAISY

And I'm putting a bolt through hers.

DAISY

The difference is that once you kill her, you're on your own against all of us.

(cont'd)

So I say we let the little gnat here do her thing and see what happens.

LITTLE ATTITUDE

(tiny font)

I'm not a gnat.

PANEL 2

Narrow panel. The Faerie Queen (left) clenches her fist with anger as she snarls at Daisy. The thief's eyes narrow, her index tightening near the hand crossbow's trigger.

FAERIE QUEEN

You don't know what you're doing. Only I can save this world from--

DAISY

(loud/big font)

BE.

(cont'd)

SILENT.

PANEL 4

Switch to Autumn, still threatened by Griz, but determined to help her friend (who's now reciting from off-panel).

AUTUMN
Louder. Say it like you BELIEVE it!

LITTLE ATTITUDE
(from off-panel; bigger font)
KLAATU BARADA NIKTO. ANÀL NATRACH,
ORTH' BHÀIS'S BETHAD--

PANEL 5

Tall panel. The Faerie Queen is alone in the panel, reacting with despair as her skin turns paler (closer to "normal"), her body is growing taller (clothes straining), her wings and ears shrinking. She's transforming back to Princess Heather's normal body, but isn't there yet. The background is dark and she's surrounded by red and green crackling energy (red representing the Ring of Dominus Femina and green representing the Heart of the Forest).
