PANEL 1

Giant square panel (full width, double height). The Faerie Queen is splitting into three versions of itself: green (translucent, at left), normal (center) and red (translucent, at right). The center version is closer to Heather (clothes in tatters); the other two are the same size as the original Faerie Queen, but monochromatic. The green and red versions are being magically pulled out of the central version. The middle version is reaching to grab her left counterpart by the wings and the right counterpart by the hair, trying to keep them from being torn from her.

CENTER QUEEN

This CAN'T happen! MUSTN'T happen!

But the queen's strength was depleted.

PANEL 2

Small panel. View near the marble floor, with the Heart of the Forest bouncing to the left on the floor.

PANEL 3

Small panel. Zoom in on Heather's face as her cheek hits the floor softly, eyes almost closed with exhaustion. (In THIS context, Heather refers to the princess' original appearance.)

Ooh...

...the faerie queen...

PANEL 4

Small panel. The Ring of Dominus Femina bounces to the right on the floor.
